

Alpha Design Labs by Furutech Appoints HDL US Distributor

April 17th 2012 • Tokyo, Japan • Furutech Co., Ltd., manufacturer of analog and digital audio and video cable plus a wide range of accessories, appoints HDL Distributing as the new Alpha Design Labs US distributor with immediate effect.

HDL is a service-orientated company with solid import and distribution experience centered on accessibility and top-notch service. Their expertise with high-end portable audio products and extensive knowledge of dealer needs and practices make them a perfect match for the growing ADL brand.

ADL was created by Furutech to imbue its Pure Transmission Technology into carefully engineered innovative computer and portable designs that everyone can afford. ADL components are made with the same dedication to total resonance control and other refinement as all of Furutech's many cables and accessories.

The partnership with HDL for ADL distribution in the US adds to the strong relationship already in place with Elite Audio Video who distributes Furutech brand products. Furutech are confident they now have the best possible representatives for each of the product lines. And you can look forward to more exciting products in the near future including a range of high-performance headphones!

Elite Audio Video Distribution of Hollywood, California continues to represent Furutech products in the US. All orders for and inquiries about Furutech products should be directed to scot.markwell@eliteavdist.com.

About HDL Distributing

"Our mission is to provide the absolute best customer experience possible in the Audio/Video industry without exception," enthuses president C. Aaron Sholtis. "We choose to sell only the best products in the world and learn everything we can about them inside and out ensuring your experience is second to none. We love the ADL products and know our customers will too."
